Legacy Infrastructure Group Announces Acquisition of Constructors, Inc. and New Mexico Ready Mix

KANSAS CITY, Missouri — September 3, 2026 — Legacy Infrastructure Group (“Legacy”), a Kansas City-based infrastructure holding company, announced the acquisition of Constructors, Inc. and New Mexico Ready Mix, established construction and materials businesses serving communities throughout New Mexico and West Texas.

The acquisition marks the latest step in Legacy’s continued growth across the Midwest and Southwest, bringing together companies with deep local roots, experienced teams and a shared commitment to building and maintaining the infrastructure their communities depend on.

Headquartered in Carlsbad, New Mexico, Constructors, Inc. has served the region since 1958. For three generations, the company has built a strong reputation in asphalt paving, highway construction, site development, utility infrastructure and materials production. New Mexico Ready Mix complements those operations through its ready-mix concrete and materials capabilities in southeastern New Mexico.

“Constructors and New Mexico Ready Mix are the kind of businesses we want to be part of Legacy,” said Trey Bowen, CEO of Legacy Infrastructure Group. “They have great people, strong leadership, deep relationships in their communities and a reputation that has been earned over decades. We have tremendous respect for what the Shoup family and their teams have built, and we see a lot of opportunity to support that work for the long term.”

Constructors, Inc. and New Mexico Ready Mix will continue operating under their existing brands, with local leadership and operations remaining in New Mexico. Legacy’s model is designed to support its operating companies with additional resources, shared expertise and long-term investment while preserving the local relationships, operating knowledge and cultures that have made them successful.

“We’re not looking to come in and change what makes a great company great,” Bowen said. “Our role is to support these businesses and their people, give them access to additional resources and capabilities, and help position them for continued success.”

David Shoup will continue to lead Constructors, Inc. and New Mexico Ready Mix, providing continuity for employees, customers and business partners.

“We are incredibly proud of the business our family and our employees have built over the past six decades,” said Shoup. “This next chapter gives our team additional resources and support while allowing us to continue doing what we do best — serving our customers, investing in our people and delivering quality work throughout New Mexico and West Texas.”

The addition of Constructors, Inc. and New Mexico Ready Mix also expands the capabilities and geographic reach of Legacy’s growing family of infrastructure companies. Legacy’s operating companies provide asphalt paving and production, heavy civil construction, site development, utility infrastructure, construction materials and testing services across the Midwest and Southwest.

Superior Bowen, a Kansas City-based asphalt paving and construction company founded in 1948, became Legacy’s first operating company when the organization was formed in 2022. Since then, Legacy has grown to include Haskell Lemon in Oklahoma City, J&R Constructors in Liberal, Kansas, and Construction Materials Testing Group in Kansas City.

While each company maintains its own identity, leadership and local relationships, Legacy provides shared resources and expertise intended to strengthen the businesses for the long term.

“Our goal is to build something that lasts,” Bowen said. “These are companies with histories worth preserving, people worth investing in and communities worth being part of. We want to honor what has already been built while creating opportunities for the next generation.”
